

Global eTrade Services Joins INTRA by E2open's partner network to help shippers and carriers orchestrate their supply chain via its CALISTA™ platform

Singapore, 15th May 2019 – Global eTrade Services (GeTS), a global trade platform company and a subsidiary of CrimsonLogic (a provider of digital government solutions, products and services), announced they have joined INTRA by E2open's partner network. The agreement extends CALISTA™, a global supply chain orchestration platform that enables the orchestration of physical logistics, statutory compliance and financial requirements, to INTRA's shipping and carrier network connecting over 30,000 shippers to approximately 60 carriers and NVOCCs on top of its growing network.

INTRA's global network of shippers will be able to access a global network of trade community through the interoperable, neutral trusted CALISTA™ platform underpin by blockchain technology. Users can leverage the global single electronic gateway to file cross border declarations, enabling seamless trade compliance declaration across multiple countries. This enables easier trade across borders from Asia, to North and Latin America regions where manifests can be filed electronically on a single platform.

Shippers can also access 'hive' (highly interconnected & vibrant e-trade), a global network and community of freight forwarders allowing them to establish partnerships and facilitate collaboration among the community, and access to a wide range of opportunities and services not limited to geographies.

Mr Eugene Wong Chairman of GeTS and CrimsonLogic said: “There is unlimited potential in enabling the supply chain flow through this collaboration to unlock new connections and generate new business opportunities between users on CALISTA™ and INTRTRA. We expect the users to benefit positively as INTRTRA streamlines the ocean trade process while GeTS brings its G2B and B2B trade domain expertise and technological capabilities to the trade community.”

“We welcome GeTS and the innovative CALISTA™ platform, which helps shippers facilitate trade through the better management and movement of goods, financing and compliance,” said Ms Sherrie Orzechowski, Vice President of Global Alliances, INTRTRA by E2open. “Their customizable solutions will be a valuable resource for INTRTRA customers and shippers managing their assets and inventory, including those seeking customs clearance and information on specific port events.”

“Managing supply chain activities are challenging, for example data flow and authenticity of data, regulatory requirements, financing and manual-intensive processes. Through the collaboration between GeTS and INTRTRA, users in US, Canada, Latin America, Europe and Asia will be able to orchestrate supply chain activities seamlessly and securely globally,” says Mr Chong Kok Keong, CEO of GeTS.
